TURKEY.

(From the "Constantinople Messenger."

(2nd & 9th March, 1881.)

Mr. Corbett, H. M. Minister in Greece, has we understand, been appointed to Rio de Janeiro, and report has it that he will be succeeded either by Mr. Matet, or by Mr. Sidney Locock.

The Admiralty is discussing a project for converting into armed cruisers the smartest of the vessels of the Mahsoussé Company. It may be doubted whether these vessels, when thus equipped, would be worth the outlay necessary for their equipment.

A Battalion of infantry has been despatched from Salonica, by the transport "Edirné," to Mount Athos, where they are for the present to be quartered. It was apparently thought probable that, in the event of war, Greek cruisers might find the monks of the Holy Mountain sympathetic and obtain provisions from their store.

The Tribunal of first instance of Stamboul condemned Karabet Agopian, Karabet Kirkor, and Simon, Armenian printers, to a fine of ten pounds and to the closing of their printing office, for three months. Their offence consisted in having printed wrappers for cigarette papers adorned with a portrait of the "Last King of Armenia" with some clap-trap inscription to catch the eye of customers. The public prosecutor had accused these men of sedition, but they pleaded that they only wanted to sell their wares, a plea which convinced the tribunal, and they were merely convicted under the "unauthorised publication" clause of the Press Law; even that seems to have been somewhat strained to meet this paltry case.

It does not appear that there is any immediate intention, as was stated some days ago, of sending Bib Dola into exile in Asia. His seclusion has not, however, been relaxed, and some representations in his behalf are said to have been made to one or more of the heads of foreign missions.

A special mission will be despatched to Paris in order to take charge of and present the brevet and insignia of the Order of the Osmanieh set in brilliants, to the President of the Republic, and those of the Medjidieh to M. M. Jules Ferry and Barthélemy de St. Hilaire. This mission will take its departure to-day.

The War-Office has ordained the payment of two months' arrears of pay to every staff officer despatched to the Greek frontier.

The principal military and naval news of Monday was that the twelve staff officers appointed for service with the Ottoman army on the Greek frontier, of whom four are colonels and the rest of lower rank, had left on Saturday to join the corps to which they are attached. Seven go to Larissa, and the other five to Jannina, Prevesa, &c. The War Office has decided also upon sending staff officers to Adrianople and other important places with the mission of inspecting the troops and of activating their organisation. The Government has ordered six torpedo boats in England. Others are said to be already on their way here from Trieste.

A sudden eruption has taken place in the sea not far from Tagarog, between the town and Mariopol, a small isle being the result of the singular phenomenon.

A telegram received at the Porte announces that some cases of plague have occurred at Djagorah in Irak.

The Servian Minister of War has concluded a contract with the Hauser arms factory, to furnish the principality with 100,000 rifles, on the Hauser-Milanovitch system, within the space of three months, the payment to be made in twenty instalments in the course of three years.

Advices from Asia Minor speak of agitation in the Armenian districts, of which the inhabitants are said to be preparing petitions to the Powers, praying that the ambassadors may be authorised to treat with the Porte and come to an understanding regarding the reforms to be applied to Armenia, in conformity with the terms of the Treaty of Berlin.

A private letter from Italy says that Ismail Pasha, ex-Khedive of Egypt, had addressed another memorial to the Sultan, praying for permission to take up his abode in Turkish dominions, or at least, to extend that favour to his family. The letter adds that the application has not been favourably received. It would seem that, before making this application, Ismail Pasha had applied to his son, the present Khedive, for hospitality for his family in Egypt, but the Khedive is said to have telegraphed to the Sultan that the presence of the "harem" of his father in Egypt would or might lead to inconvenience and thus advised the Sultan did not deem it expedient to acquiesce in the demand of Ismail Pasha.

Her Majesty's Ambassador, the Right Hon. G. J. Goschen, dined with the Sultan on Saturday night. His Excellency was accompanied by Mr. Frederick R. St. John, secretary of Embassy, (lately chargé d'affaires here, and latterly appointed Minister in Central America.) Captain Swaine, military attaché, and Sir Alfred Sandison, Political Dragoman and Oriental secretary. The official circle invited to meet the British Ambassador was composed of Osman Pasha, Minister of War, Server Pasha, President of the Council of State, the Minister of Marine, Hobart Pasha, &c. Her Majesty, seated at one end of the dinner-table, had the Ambassador on his right, and Mr. St. John on his left. Facing the Sultan at the opposite end of the table sat the two young princes, with Sir Alfred Sandison on their right and Captain Swaine on their left.

After dinner the Sultan withdrew with Mr. Goschen, Mr. St. John, Captain Swaine, Sir Alfred Sandison and Muir Bey, to the conservatory, where tea was served. His Majesty who has quite recovered from his late attack of toothache was in excellent spirits.

A Vienna letter of recent date says:—The Austrian War Office is now preparing plans with the aid of a special commission, for the introduction of military service into Bosnia and the Herzegovina. The question is a thorny one, because Turkey still considers that she possesses sovereign rights over these provinces, and that Austria only occupies them provisionally. In spite of these considerations, nevertheless, the Ministry of War still seems determined to carry out its intentions.

Pay for the month of June last, was yesterday distributed to the employés of the Admiralty.

The Imperial despatch vessel "Ismail" sailed yesterday for the Mediterranean with sealed orders.

The British Ambassador, H. E. the Right Hon. G. J. Goschen, has been suffering for the last few days from a cold. Consequently, the last few meetings of the ambassadorial conference have been held at the British embassy.

We are happy to be able to state that the Italian ambassador, H. E. Count Corti, is now so far recovered from his recent accident, as to be able to leave the house, and to walk about with the help of a stick. The deep wound caused by the stone on which His Excellency fell is not yet completely healed, but it is going on quite favourably. Count Corti's general health has not in any way suffered by the accident.

Within the last week, Mr. Grulich, the Servian minister, has presented two Notes to the Sublime Porte. The former of these documents presents a claim for frs. 251,000, for the maintenance of Ottoman prisoners taken in the war of 1877-78. In the latter, the Servian minister thanks the Porte, on behalf of the Government of the Principality, for the measures adopted by the Ottoman authorities on the frontier for the prevention of the incursions of Albanian bands into Servian territory. These measures, the Note states, have been successful in checking invasions on an extended scale, but they have not yet proved operative against the aggressions of small bands, whose depredations are in a smaller way serious and extremely annoying.

Mahmoud Nedim Pasha, Minister of the Interior, was unable to be present at the tw last private sittings of the Cabinet Council. It appears His Excellency suffers much from the want of sleep and fatigue induced by attendance at the successive meetings of council, which have lasted all night.

The Cabinet Council, which met on Tuesday of last week, continued its deliberations till nearly mid-day on Wednesday. Ministers were consequently unable to attend at their offices. The discussion was less political than military, and great importance was given to the value of what are termed "strategic points." It is believed, however, that the ultimate decision will not turn upon these points of military detail.

The Turkish authorities at Volo recently imprisoned some Greek "rayahs" in default of payment of the tax for exemption from military service. It was stated on Friday at the Porte, that the Hellenic Government had made representations to the Ottoman Government objecting to this measure on the grounds that as Volo was included in the territory ceded by the Note of Oct. 3, the enforcement of the tax in question was contrary to the spirit of that Note.

"CYPRUS"

Larnaca, Sunday, March, 20th, 1881

Last Monday the public were suddenly taken by surprise with the startling and melancholy news of the assassination of the Czar, caused by two bombs being thrown under his carriage as he was out driving, the first had no effect but the second exploded and killed the Emperor besides killing and wounding several others.

The Emperor Alexander II was born in April 1818, and was therefore in his 63rd year, he succeeded his father in March 1855. The late Emperor is succeeded by his son Alexander born on the 10th March 1845, so he has just completed his 33th year; he married 9 Nov. 1865 Princess Dagmar of Denmark, sister of the Princess of Wales. The death of the Emperor Alexander although everything connected with it inspires one with abomination, will no doubt effect great changes in the European policy as the new Emperor is closely connected with several powers; first and foremost he is doubly connected with the Royal Family of England, as he is the brother-in-law of the Princess of Wales, and he stands in the same relationship to the Duke of Edinburgh, the 2nd son of Queen Victoria who is married to the only daughter of the late Emperor. The new Czar is also very closely connected with the Royal House of Greece as he is brother-in-law of King George, as well as a cousin of Queen Olga who is the eldest daughter of the Grand Duke Constantine. Of course his relationship to the Royal House of Denmark is well known, and it is a noticeable fact that the two daughters of Christian IX King of Denmark a kingdom which is reckoned of little consequence in the policy of Europe should have obtained the hands in marriage of two such powerful princes as the Emperor of Russia and the Prince of Wales respectively, and there is no doubt that Denmark will play a more important part in Europe than hitherto. The new Emperor besides being connected with the Powers we have mentioned has shown a great friendship for France, and it is well known that he bears a great hatred for Germany which will no doubt cause the "Franco-Russian" alliance question to crop up again. This sudden change of sovereignty in Russia will also probably change the politics pursued in Eastern Europe as if England shows determination and forms an alliance with France and Russia in order to compel Turkey to carry out the stipulations of the Berlin Conference a peaceful settlement would be attained as Turkey would not be so imprudent as to plunge into a war with Greece, with the probable assistance of England, France and Russia which would no doubt bring the downfall of Ottoman rule in Europe nearer than it is at present, and which has existed until now through sheer brute force and the inability of the Powers to decide what to do with the country now under the rule of the Sultan, and last but not least with Constantinople which is the greatest jewel in the crown of Turkey, and which has always been the principal object of the many wars the Czars of Russia have waged against Turkey, under the plea of emancipating the Christians. It remains to be seen whether the present Czar of all the Russias will follow in the footsteps of his father and grandfather in his policy respecting the Ottoman Empire; if so he will have an antagonist in England who will never allow Russia to possess Constantinople, so he would be better advised rather to look to the internal state of his large Empire which is said to comprise one-seventh of the territorial surface of the globe, and which allows so much room for reform rather than occupy himself with such an inflammable subject as the Eastern Question. When Russia is in a state similar to her Western neighbours then it is the time for her to preach reform to Turkey and then she will be paid more attention to. The principal form of Government according to the spirit of the times is one in which the people have a voice in the administration of their country, and one which ought to remain itself to all civilised rulers if they want to have the confidence of those over whom they are appointed to govern, and no country can ever hope to be prosperous whose destinies are presided over by the will of one man, and in Russia we have a glaring example of the state we wish to infer whose people have been groaning under a harsh despotism for centuries and which has now led to such a heinous crime which will cause all Europe to shudder.

Local Notes.

We are informed that the band of the 35th Regiment will play to-day from 11 to 12 on the Quay near the Ottoman Bank.

Last Monday being the anniversary of the birth of His Majesty King Humbert of Italy there was a reception at the Italian Consulate.

This week owing to the races at Nicosia the principal residents and Government officials have wandered to the Capital to indulge in the gaieties there. On Monday there was a Lawn Tennis match among the gentlemen, Friday Lady Billip had a garden party at Government House to which all the Government officials were invited. Wednesday there were private theatricals at Mrs. Bovill's in the evening, as well as the 1st day's racing in the afternoon, Thursday was the 2nd day's racing in the afternoon and in the evening St. Patrick's Ball given by Mr. King Harman and his friends, Friday and Saturday were off days there being nothing of importance set down. From the above programme those who went to Nicosia from Larnaca did not regret doing so but on the contrary passed a very agreeable time of it.

We have already announced the sad accident which happened to Captain Luttinan Johnson whilst training a horse for the Nicosia races, and we regret to say that the progress of his recovery is such as to cause anxiety to his friends.

We understand that the Austrian Lloyd's steamer from Smyrna due in Cyprus on the 29th inst. will touch at Limassol. This new trial adopted by the Company is after the wishes of the inhabitants, and if this proves successful the two boats which arrive every fortnight from Constantinople and Alexandria will both touch at Limassol.

We regret to announce that the projected "Cyprus Land Mortgage and Investment Company" has not succeeded owing to an insufficient amount of capital being subscribed. We believe however that the intended business will be carried out with private capital.

According to the "Morning Post" it is probable that Sir Garnet Wolseley will be raised to the peerage, and it says the reason for conferring this dignity on the distinguished general is that he may, in the House of Lords, conduct and explain the new scheme of military reform which he will personally supervise at the Horse Guards.

Owing to the Quarantine the S.S. Elpitha will not proceed to Beyroul but will return to Alexandria with the mail and the "Fortuna" which arrives from Beyroul will return thither.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

It is hereby ordered that from and after the publication of this notice and until further orders all vessels arriving in Cyprus from Syrian Ports shall undergo a quarantine of three days, which quarantine will be carried out at the Port of Larnaca only.

Passengers, luggage, letters, newspapers, &c., will be landed in quarantine and will then be unpacked and aired, and if considered necessary by the Sanitary Officer will be disinfected.

The following articles of commerce will be repelled until further orders:—

1. Cotton, raw or manufactured.
2. Hair in its natural state or manufactured.
3. Hemp, rough and undressed or manufactured.

4. Raw hides, dry or manufactured.
5. Horse hair in its natural state or manufactured.
6. Undressed Animals Skins or fragments.
7. Wool, manufactured or unmanufactured.
8. Flax, undressed or manufactured.
9. Skins, undressed or manufactured.
10. Feathers in their natural state or manufactured.
11. Raw or manufactured Silk.
12. Every description of merchandise in sacks until the wrappers have been removed.
13. Paper, books, artificial flowers and objects sewed with susceptible substances.
14. Animals, alive or dead.

By Command,
PAUL WARREN,

Chief Secretary to Government.

17th March, 1881.

A GREEK CHURCH BAPTISM.

It is the opinion of that ingenious essayist the author of "Out of the Hurly Burly" that the babies of to-day are not what their old-fashioned prototypes used to be. From reliable accounts of the conduct of babies of the early part of this century, Mr. Max Adler has ascertained that they were stuffy, sleepy, and addicted to indulgence in a remarkable amount of silence. The infants of the present period are not thus. They now appear to come into the world with two fixed resolves: not to stay asleep more than an hour or two in each night, and to give their lungs and vocal chords the largest opportunities of exercise. And the same excellent authority goes on to point out that there is an element of ingratitude in this behaviour, which, unless there is a speedy reform, will be likely to create a permanent prejudice against the modern baby.

It is with the greater satisfaction in the face of these remarks, that we are able to testify to the correctness of demeanour of the youthful young gentleman who on Sunday last, we saw submitted under the vine and fig-tree of his fathers to a ceremony which by the time it took in celebration and the amount of ritual to be gone through might have tried the patience of a juvenile saint, little less of one of those fractious "mat" babies which the little girl asked for in preference to the common-place wax doll. When we reached the house at which the rite was to be conducted, we found a goodly number of friends and relatives assembled to assist at the interesting event. We were introduced to the father, whom we noticed—not without a measure of sympathy—took "a back seat" during the performance, leaving the general superintendence of affairs to "Grandmamma," who, as grandmamas are wont to do under such circumstances, bustled about hither and thither, her face radiant with happiness. The mother is content to know her offspring is in safe hands; and a personage more important to the celebration was the god-father, a rôle undertaken on Sunday afternoon by a gentleman who looked happier in his part than do most men in a similar position, and altogether acquitted himself admirably of his task. By the time we had smoked a cigarette, and "passed the time of day," four "papas" had arrived upon the scene—which was the first-floor of a house not any great distance from the bazaar here. While these rested a little, necessary preparations were going on in an inner room in which the ladies and children had taken up their quarters.

And then began if not a "murder grim and great" at least a ceremony grand and imposing. There was first the baptismal font resembling a huge brazen egg-cup. Of candles of high degree and of low degree there were plenty; and a recommendable sanitary adjunct was a piece of serviceable-looking soap which appeared fitted for a somewhat more pachydermatous hide than that of the infant now about to be the object of "so much fuss." The ceremony requires, I am informed, that the child shall be free from all covering except such as is afforded by a plain sheet; and a something which I suppose I may call a cincture is, I perceive, removed. Now is the turn of the godfather. I note he handles the babe gingerly. I thank my stars I have no responsibility. But he does far from badly. I was prepared to extend sympathy; I can proffer praise. Not much. He takes the child and presents it in an eastward direction—a direction the reverse of which, by-the-by, it would probably be the wish of most of us to have to make way. The child is then blessed. The celebration of this—as indeed of most of the observances—having been repeated three times, the child is blown—beamed—upon by the priest—then is recited a benediction, the sign of the cross is made, and three exorcisms are delivered, which, it may be hoped, will satisfactorily deliver the juvenile from the pangs of the devil, his angels, and all the rest of them. There follows another blessing three times repeated on the forehead, mouth and breast respectively. The priest then proceeded to deal with the youngster which he did with a judicious mildness born of a temperance which brought down upon him who exorcised it the commendation of the writer in so much as it was worth. Elevating its (as a bachelor we claim pardon for addressing the younger in the neuter gender) hands to the west, it was demanded, as far as we with our small knowledge of Greek could ascertain, "if it separated itself from the Devil, his angels, his pomps and all his works." To this interesting query there was no reply except an ejaculation something, betwixt a sob and a groan. The godfather, however, speedily came to the juvenile's relief. "I separate myself" he declared. Papa Epiphanius was not, however, satisfied with this statement. Three times was it required of the gentleman who officiated as parrain to reiterate a reply of "I have" to the query of "Have you forsaken?" Moreover it was required of him to renounce the devil and all his works by spitting upon him or his imaginary substance, after which he was addressed to the effect as to whether "he entered in communion with Jesus Christ?" This satisfactorily settled there followed an interrogative as to whether you "believe in Christ"; in response to which you—if a well-behaved, self-respecting godfather—recites the credo.

But then commences what may be termed the real business. Father Epiphanius proceeds to change his "petticoats." He assumes white ones. More candles are lit and it is proceeded to make a tour of the dip in which it is intended presently to submerge the intended innocent.

Three or four benedictions are pronounced blessing the water, the godfather meanwhile holding a small cup containing oil. This having also been blessed is added to the contents of the baptismal font or urn, being cast upon the waters in the shape of a cross. Then the child is brought forward and deposited on an elaborately ornamented pillow prepared for the purpose. More signs of the cross are made, this time commencing on the breast; and it is only when these terminate that the immersion takes place. Taking the child in his arms in an upright position and facing eastward, Father Epiphanius plunges the babe three times, the water having been previously warmed from due respect to the infantile feelings. The child is then "clothed in apparel like the day" there not being a reference library in Cyprus, we cannot be answerable for the accuracy of our quotations. While the investiture is in progress I hazard a conjecture to my next-door neighbour as to where this gorgeous array comes from. I am not sure if it is to my shame and sorrow. At the moment of dressing the child these words are pronounced: "The servant of God is endowed with the robe of justice in the name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost, Amen." Again was the sign of the cross made on all parts of the child's body and once more did papa, the "parrain" with their precious charge make a turn of the urn. Then was read a portion of the epistle of the Apostle Paul to the Romans, Ch. VI; upon which followed part of the 23rd ch. St. Matthew, interpreted by the highly-respected father of our Greek ecclesiastical community Papas Epiphanius. The ceremony may now be said to be at an end. The mother who, strangely enough, is not allowed to be present throughout the ceremony, now has her offspring restored to her and is apparently made glad thereby.

Now advances the godfather child in arms. He delivers it first into the hands of Father Epiphanius, who in turn delivers to the mother, who, in her turn, hands it to be placed in the couch which in accordingly done.

Then is there consumption of commandaria and small cakes. And with this the ceremony of a Greek ritual baptism is at an end.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS & OINTMENT.

THE Troops in Cyprus will find HOLLOWAY'S PILLS invaluable to them if taken in such doses as will act gently on the system once or twice in the day. They correct all disorders of the liver and stomach. In cases of weakness and debility, they are priceless.

The late Col. Sir JAMES DENNY, of the 3rd Buffs many years ago, and on the day of his arrival in London with his gallant regiment from India, called to see Mr. Holloway and said that he considered he was indebted for his excellent health whilst there, to the use of his Pills. Col. Denny afterwards lived in Ireland, and frequently sent to Mr. Holloway for a supply of his Pills.

THE OINTMENT will cure any Old Wound, Sore, or Ulcer, and is famous in cases of Rheumatism.

The Pills and Ointment are sold at Professor Holloway's Establishment, 533, Oxford Street, London, and by nearly all Medicine Vendors throughout the civilized world, in Boxes and Pots, each with directions for use in almost every language. They may be procured in LARNACA at the
