

Title:	The Impact of Perceived Community Prosperity on Job Satisfaction of Black and White Workers
Year:	1976
Author:	Milutinovich Yugoslav, Tsaklanganos Angelos
Abstract:	Data collected from black and white workers in three organizations indicate that workers living in communities with different perceived levels of prosperity have different job satisfaction. A relatively less affluent community seems to be a causal variable in lower job satisfaction of workers. The implications of these findings on workers' behavior are discussed